

SHORT-TERM OPPORTUNITIES

Short-Term Opportunities

In addition to semester and full-year programs, Bucknell University students may participate in Bucknell in Short-Term Programs (<https://www.bucknell.edu/academics/beyond-classroom/global-campus-education/study-abroad-programs/>) led by Bucknell University faculty, winter or summer programs offered by third-party providers. Each year, numerous Bucknell in Short-Term Programs (<https://www.bucknell.edu/academics/beyond-classroom/global-campus-education/study-abroad-programs/>) are offered in various locations such as Barbados, Denmark, Spain and others. Programs vary year-to-year and updates are noted on the program webpage. Students interested in Bucknell in Short-Term Programs (<https://www.bucknell.edu/academics/beyond-classroom/global-campus-education/study-abroad-programs/>) should contact the appropriate faculty directors before submitting an application.

Summer Opportunities

Students applying to programs offered by third parties must schedule an appointment with the Office of Global & Off-campus Education to discuss possible program options. Aside from the third-party provider's application, there is an additional Bucknell application and Transfer of Credits (TOC) form that students will need to complete to have credits transferred to Bucknell.

Summer study abroad is open to all students regardless of class status. Eligibility requirements and application deadlines differ for each program, but all students who plan to study abroad in the summer must have a history of good conduct. Students taking part in summer programs will be responsible for tuition and all other expenses. Bucknell is not affiliated with any provider, so make sure to read and feel comfortable with cancel/refund policies before committing to a program.
